ABOUT PROJECT CASK

Project CASK, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit, is the largest parent-led funder of CASK gene therapeutic development. We exist to unlock the full potential of science and technology to treat — and one day cure — CASK gene disorders.

While there are no targeted treatments today, Project CASK is advancing the science to move promising treatments closer to clinical reality.

GUIDED BY WORLD-CLASS EXPERTS, WE

FUND THE SCIENCE — Supporting 11 studies, including a gene therapy program, small molecule treatments, and prevalence, epilepsy and MRI studies, among others.

BUILD THE EVIDENCE BASE — Collecting natural history data, establishing a patient registry, and partnering with leading institutions to generate the foundation future treatments require.

STAND WITH FAMILIES — Educating, advocating, and building community for families who live with CASK every day.

What is the CASK gene disorder?

It is a rare, X-linked neurological condition caused by mutations in the CASK gene, which provides instructions for making a protein that plays a critical role in brain development.

Children with the disorder typically experience significant intellectual and motor disabilities, and sometimes seizures, need for g-tube feeding, and limited or no speech.
